For generations, we in India have been using our hands to clean after toilet and it is only now that we are realising that this has been a major cause for the spread of dangerous diseases like Hepatitis, Typhoid, Cholera, Gastro-enteritis, Diarrhea etc.

According to Global Hygiene Council only 27% of Indians wash their hands with water after toilet. Very few of them use soap. Even soap according to medical research cleans only 50% of the germs. We are therefore carrying these dangerous germs all the time under our nails/ inside our skin pores which then find their way into our food cycle when we prepare Atta, eat with our hands etc. We also transmit these germs to our loved ones or others. The critical question is - Can we avoid contaminating our hands with these dangerous germs?

Yes, modern technology now has a simple solution to this problem - Attachable Bidets

What is an Attachable Bidet?

- Hands-free cleaning. Automatically cleans in 10 seconds.
- Easily attachable device to your existing WC.
- Convenient - just turn a knob/ press a button by your side.
- Great asset for men, women, children, elders, handicapped persons.
- Eco-friendly, saves 90% water.
- Optional features - nozzles for women, warm water wash, warm air dryer, anti-bacterial and heated seat, anema function, remote control etc.
- Affordable; starts at Rs. 1,790 MRP
